BRUSSELS, February 6 – The European Union reiterated its firm commitment to a two-state solution, emphasizing that Gaza must be an essential part of a future Palestinian state.

EU foreign affairs spokesperson Anouar El Anouni reaffirmed this stance during a news conference in Brussels, stating that the bloc sees a two-state solution as the only viable path to lasting peace for both Israelis and Palestinians. He stressed that there should be no further forced displacement of Palestinians.

The EU's remarks follow controversial statements by former U.S. President Donald Trump, who suggested relocating Palestinians to Egypt or Jordan and having the U.S. "take over" Gaza. The proposal has been widely condemned across the Arab world and beyond.

Brussels' reaffirmation underscores the EU's continued push for a peaceful resolution based on international law and the territorial integrity of a future Palestinian state.
