Abdulla Al-Naama, General Manager of Msheireb Museums, said: “Hosting these vital discussions at Msheireb Museums demonstrates our role as a platform for meaningful conversations that tackle the pressing issues of our times. At Msheireb Museums, and especially within Bin Jelmoed House, sustainability is not just a theme—it’s a guiding principle embedded in our narrative and our surroundings. This is reflected in the very design of Msheireb Downtown Doha, one of the world’s most sustainable cities. Hosting the Doha Climate Talks here feels especially meaningful, aligning perfectly with our commitment to climate awareness and responsible urban living.”

The event addressed region-specific challenges including water security, renewable energy transition, and sustainable urban development, with particular focus on the critical role of women and youth in climate leadership. The discussions highlighted innovative approaches to climate diplomacy and the importance of multi-stakeholder partnerships in accelerating climate action.

The event aligns with Qatar National Vision 2030 and demonstrates the country’s commitment to environmental sustainability, as exemplified by Msheireb Downtown Doha, which serves as a living testament to sustainable urban development.
