MIRPUR (AJK): | July 11:– In a significant stride toward reframing the global Kashmir discourse, the Kashmir Global Council (KGC), in collaboration with the National Council of Human Welfare (NCHW), will convene a landmark conference on July 14, 2025, at Capitol Hill, Washington, D.C, organisers officially announced on Friday.

Themed “Kashmir: From Conflict to Peace – Post-Solution Opportunities and Investment,” the conference is poised to ignite meaningful dialogue around sustainable peace, regional collaboration, and visionary investment in Kashmir’s future. With a focus on post-conflict solutions, the event underscores Kashmir’s place not just as a geopolitical issue but as a moral and political imperative on the international stage, says a message reaching from Atlanta, Georgia and released to the media here on Friday.

“This isn’t just a milestone for the diaspora,” said Raja Muzaffar, US-based acting Chairman of Jammu Kashmir Liberation Front JKLF (Yasin Malik faction) and a leading voice in the movement. “It’s a message to the world: Kashmir’s path forward lies in justice, dignity, and constructive engagement.”

The Capitol Hill venue marks a deliberate step in garnering global attention toward peaceful resolution and innovative strategies for rebuilding. Scholars, advocates, and policymakers will gather to explore ways to transform Kashmir into a bridge of peace and friendship across South and Central Asia, the message said.

The event also celebrates cultural resilience and intellectual contributions from across the Kashmiri community. Ahead of the gathering, Muzaffar shared a heartfelt reflection:

“A cherished memory with Kashmir’s peace-loving thinkers and devoted advocates. Reuniting with familiar faces and meeting new guests this July 14 fills me with hope. I arrive in Washington tonight, God willing”, the message concluded.
