Ankara, August 04 (QNA) – Turkish Interior Minister Ali Yerlikaya met in Ankara on Monday with his Syrian counterpart Anas Khattab and discussed cooperation opportunities in the security field.

Both ministers addressed the situation of Syrians residing in Türkiye, with Khattab underscoring the need for continued cooperation to secure their safe return.

According to official data released by Türkiye's Directorate General of Migration Management, the number of Syrians under temporary protection in Türkiye has declined by 25.8 percent over five years, reaching its lowest level since 2020.
