BERLIN, Oct. 1 (rki.news) – Authorities in Munich have confirmed that the man responsible for an early Wednesday explosion and subsequent fire has been found dead. Local reports indicate that the suspect detonated explosives at his parents' residence, resulting in his own death and injuries to one other individual.

The incident occurred in Munich's Lerchenau district, prompting an immediate police response.

Emergency services contained the fire, and officials have confirmed that there is currently no danger to the public. Traffic in the area has been restricted while investigations continue.

Police have emphasized that the explosion is not linked to the ongoing Oktoberfest celebrations.

Authorities are continuing to investigate the motive behind the attack and are advising residents to remain vigilant while operations are underway.

The investigation is ongoing, with local law enforcement coordinating closely with fire and emergency services to ensure safety and determine the full circumstances of the incident.
