In Pakistani history, there are certain days that remain etched in the nation's memory forever. The first anniversary of "Marka-e-Haq" is one such occasion that reminds us of the strategic triumph that shattered the enemy's arrogance. Exactly one year ago, when regional peace was put at risk, the brave sons of Pakistan responded with such courage and professional excellence that its echoes are still heard across the border. This day is not merely a celebration of a military victory; it is a reaffirmation of the unwavering commitment to Pakistan's integrity and sovereignty that resides in the heart of every Pakistani.

In a recent briefing, the DG ISPR discussed the far-reaching impacts of this battle, clarifying that the success of the operation proved that Pakistan's defense is not just emotional but a masterpiece of modern military strategy and technology. The military spokesperson detailed how the exemplary coordination between the Army, Navy, and Air Force left the enemy no room to recover. He emphasized that Marka-e-Haq has relegated aggressive doctrines like the enemy's "Cold Start" to the pages of history. The core message of today's briefing was that the Pakistan Armed Forces, powered by the strength of their people, possess the capability to crush any mischief aimed at creating instability in the country.

The greatest success of this battle was that it infused Pakistan with newfound confidence on both internal and external fronts. Whether it was the roar of the JF-17 Thunder over the battlefield or the vigilance of the Navy over the sea waves, the spirit of “Pakistaniat” prevailed in every domain. As we complete one year of this victory today, we must renew our resolve to stand firmly behind our institutions. Marka-e-Haq is essentially the name of the conflict between truth and falsehood, where truth emerged victorious, and Pakistan rose as an invincible power.
